

Focus on China's Paper Industry

The year 2021 marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Communist Party of China, the first year of the 14th Five-Year Plan, the beginning of a new journey to comprehensively build a modern socialist country, the new starting point for the vision of 2035, and the first year of advancing the double carbon goal.

In 2021, driven by the overall steady and positive domestic economic situation and the increase in foreign trade, the paper industry has overcome the impact of rising costs of raw materials, energy and transportation, as well as many uncertainties in the market caused by the spread of COVID-19, by optimizing the industrial structure, improving product quality, adapting to the changes of market demand, accelerating the pace of green development to ensure the market supply, realize the flourishing of production and sales, the significant growth of economic benefits, and maintain the stable development of the paper industry.

In order to help international paper colleagues to clarify the latest development of the China's paper industry, China Paper Newsletters sets up the English section in this issue. In this section, 2021 Annual Report of China's Paper Industry promulgated by China Paper Association and 2021 top ten news of China's paper industry will be published. ▮